

Why We Support the Lemur Center:
The Kudale family

Our family passionately believes that maintaining the world's biodiversity is crucial for our generations as well as future ones. Our parents are local Durham residents and brought us to the Lemur Center in 2013. We were amazed by the breadth of the program, and by how enchanted our young children (and us) were with these magnificent animals. Our children asked question after question about lemurs and about Madagascar after the visit. To see the lemurs jump and roam about in the free-range locations is an experience that could only be exceeded by a trip to Madagascar itself. During that visit, one of the lemurs had escaped and that comical episode inspired us to give back in an effort to help all the good work Duke is doing.
